

MASAHIRO NISHIKAWA is Chief Representative of the Office of the City of Yokohama Representative to the Americas, based in New York. He leads Yokohama's engagement and partnership initiatives across North America, with a focus on urban innovation, climate technology, life sciences, startup ecosystems, and sustainable urban development.

Throughout his career with the City of Yokohama, he has worked extensively on international affairs, subnational diplomacy, and cross-border partnerships. He has developed collaborations among local governments, international organizations, startups, venture capital firms, universities, and corporations, while supporting international business development and innovation-driven economic growth. He has also represented Yokohama in international conferences and policy dialogues, including discussions related to the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

He holds a Master of Public Policy from the National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS) in Tokyo and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from the University of Tsukuba.
